

Demands of Kidnapper & Release Negotiations

"I have 3 demands or I'll kill the boy!"

Negotiators assess the situation from next door.

Head Negotiator dispatched.

Negotiations begin.

Negotiations conclude.

Everyone goes home in time for dinner.

Well, almost everyone.

In America -

We would assume this guy is innocent (probably had a bad childhood or ate a Hostess Twinkie, or something) and we would attempt to discuss the situation for hours, maybe even a day or longer.

Once down, we would spend thousands to give him a fair trial, with free legal defense and THEN, IF we find him guilty, send him to prison for a few years where he'll get out and most likely do something stupid again.

While in prison he will have a roof over his head, watch cable TV, eat and maybe learn the law and before we know it he'll turn around and sue the police negotiator and local and federal governments.

All this and more is paid for by you guessed it, your tax dollars.

In Japan they keep their expenses and valuable time extremely minimized.
